Strategy Approach

(1) SWOT Analysis

Strength, Weakness, opportunity, threat

(*) Analyze the case:

(i) Define
(ii) Consider
(iii) List
(iv) Select
(v) How to implement
(vi) How to communicate

(*) EK & G Case:

→ Strengths:

⊙ Innovative product (Pulsomatic) with a unique pulse + fortune telling feature

- Owners are engineers with strong medical background
- High demand after hiring a marketing manager (orders increased from 1000 to 2500)
- Attractive business model (monthly revenue sharing with host businesses)

→ Weakness:

- High product cost (rose from $175 to over $250 per unit)
- Dependency on Chinese suppliers for FTUL unit caused price and currency risks.
- No early marketing strategy until Itdsigoin was hired
- Limited staff (only five employees) making expansion difficult.

→ Opportunity:

- Large potential market - supermarkets, restaurants, bars, and nursing homes.
- Economies of scale → cost should drop to $200 if 1000+ units produced yearly

- Growing interest from host businesses due to revenue sharing.
- Room to expand product variations or improve features.

→ Threats:

- Rising manufacturing costs making the product less profitable.
- Competition if other firms try to copy the idea.
- Currency fluctuations affect imported FTUL parts.
- Market acceptance risks - depends on customer interest in the fortune-telling feature.

- Niches, Market Gap, Backup support system.
